The player can unlock a more updated version of the car, the 350Z Turbocharged, for the $10,000 dollar bounty at the end of the game, to be used in the Need for Speed Underground 3 and Need for Speed Most Wanted. This is the last car in the Underground series to be introduced, and is only playable in Need for Speed: Underground 3 and the mobile phone spin-off Need for Speed: Undercover. After the release of Need for Speed: Underground 2, the 350Z appears in Need for Speed Carbon, which is a prequel to Underground 2. Carbon takes place five years before Underground 2, and this is the only game in the series in which the 350Z is featured. It is the first iteration of the original Nissan 350Z to be featured in a Need for Speed game. The original 350Z was considered too difficult for the game, and so it was decided to make a car based on the GT-R, the most powerful car in the game. The 350Z makes a cameo in the racing game, Flatout. The driver of the 350Z is named 'Milo' after the fictional character from the TV show Malcolm in the Middle, although the in-game version is a male rather than female. The 350Z also makes a brief appearance in the movie, Need for Speed: Most Wanted. It features as the character's vehicle in a high-speed chase between a police car and a stolen car. The modified 350Z from Underground 2 returns in the 2017 Need for Speed.

The Nissan 350Z also makes an appearance in the popular Need for Speed game series Shift. It is a new model in the 2013 edition, with some modifications to allow it to be the faster vehicle to the 350Z. In Need for Speed: Shift 2 Unleashed, the player can purchase a Nissan 350Z replica from the Autosport shop. This is a slightly modified version of the original 350Z, with a heavy engine upgrade to get it up to match the original. The 350Z also makes an appearance in the TV series, Fast & Furious, as a car that Dominic Toretto (Lucas Blackwood) uses. In Fast & Furious: Street Racing, the Nissan 350Z is owned by a criminal called Eric Hill. He crashes into the player's car while competing in a street race, and the two cars must be fixed. A car similar to the Nissan 350Z is also used by a criminal called Wexford in 82157476af
